McKinley and Other Dark Horses Talked of-Last Night's Conference of Blainites.

CHICAGO, June 24th.—This has been a a standard-bearer for the Republican party in the coming campaign. The day was bright and beautiful. There was a brilliant shine and a cool breeze. It was an took advantage of it to visit the suburban and relief from the tumultuous scenes that they have taken part in during the last few dreds from every part of the country expressing disapprobation and even in many cases dismay at the situation. These telegrams express this feeling—that if the Convention has gone into the control of any nan or set of men who can hold it from day to day and paralyze its proceedings, that uch a situation is discouraging to the Republicans of the country. It was expected of this Convention that they would meet and at once harmoniously decide upon a candidate. In these dispatches last light an interview was given with Governor Foraker of Ohio, in which he stated that e would cast the vote of a large contingent the Ohio delegation for Mr. Blaine on the first ballot to-morrow, which contingent would include his own vote. This was the expression as stated by him, with the further statement that he had stood by Sherman honestly and loyally until it appeared that there was no hope for his nomination. He said: "There seems to be a large part of our delegation devoted to Mr. Blaine, and they have come o me with the statement they will no onger vote for Sherman, and if I declare the solid vote of Ohio for Sherman on the rst ballot to-morrow they will call for a poll of the delegation, and under the circum-THE OLDEST ESTABLISHED and most favorably located Market for shipping of meats by either railroad or express, being but half a block from either place. A majority of he delegation believe that it is the duty of he Blaine advocates to await the withdrawal of the other candidates before they force their candidate upon the Convention. but there seems to be no disposition upon the part of either Alger, Allison, Harrison or Sherman to pull out of the fight in Blaine's favor, and it is doubtful if he can obtain the nomination without a fight Creed Haymond declared that Blaine was ound to be nominated, because he had 600 of the 825 delegates in the Convention, but Califoania, he declared, was willing to abide by any decision respecting the time of his nomination that the Blaine managers might make.

FORECASTS OF TO-DAY'S BELLOTS. On the second ballot to-morrow New York, it is expected, will break for John Sherman. They expect to cast at least sixty votes for him, beating the fifty-five votes that Pennsylvania has heretofore cast for Obio's candidate, Obio will cast her forty-six votes for Sherman, according to present intentions, and Pennsylvania will not give him less than fifty-three votes on the second ballot. Nebraska will give her vote on this ballot to Sherman also, and it

There was a rumor going about the hotel corridors to-day that Emmons Blaine said that Mr. Walker Blaine had stated that their father would under no circumstances accept the nomination, and that the presidence of anti-Blaine men has agreed not to present any candidates will stand firm. There will be no withdrawals. There will be no withdrawals. The conference of anti-Blaine men have a firm grip on the Constitution to adjourn, the Senator moved that his request be withdrawn. The feeling is that if Blaine does not settle the matter the onvention will have to settle it, and that the Convention cannot sincerely go about the business of choosing a leader as long as this Blaine specter hangs over it. The

the fact that the candidates whom Elkins professes to have killed are still in the race. They are in for the purpose of winning, if possible, and determined at all hazards to prevent the nomination of Blaine.

To-morrow the balloting is likely to show a repetition of the ballots of Saturday. While these candidates are in the field Elkins will not dare carry out his programme of stampeding the Convention, beter goes away from the principles he is the man upon whom public opinion will concentrate, as the most available candidate. One of the main points of Mr. McKinley's strength, besides all of the other feets. sets the Convention free to act upon its own responsibility, the Convention may sit for the extraordinary difficulty by which it is now surrounded. There has been MUCH TALK OF M'KINLEY. As a dark horse. There is no doubt that McKinley has made a fine impression and is popular on his own account, but it has been noticed that those who were doing all in their power to press him to the front were Blaine men. In the conference of candidates Blaine's influence has been exerted in favor of McKinley as the leader of the convertion forces all the conference. The matter upon the first ballot but it is not likely that it will be so decided. It is more likely that the Convention will be men in the Convention concentrating their men in the Convention concentrating their strength upon him. This effort to induce other candidates to withdraw and bring It McKinley forward as a dark horse takes their place. BLAINE WILL BE NOMINATED. The logic of this is easily perceived. Blaine cannot in honor take this nomination if secured by running over candidates who entered the field and did the best they could for themselves, but if these candidates voluntarily withdraw and a dark horse takes their place no obligation rests upon Blaine as to the new-comer who has not been a candidate and whose friends have put forth no efforts in his behalf, on the supposition that Blaine was out of the

An effort has also been made by the Blaine people to get Foraker to stand as a dark horse, and Foraker has posed before the Convention with that purpose in view, on the distinct understanding that if the every direction could be seen the people gathered here from all parts of the United States—out for an airing and a little rest states—out for an airing airing air airing airing air airing airing airing air airing airing air airing airin but the Vice-Presidency being his reward.

FIFTH DAY'S WORK. The Convention Takes Only Two Ballots

on Saturday. CHICAGO, June 24th.-The Convention was called to order shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday by Warner Miller of New York, who presided. It was generally believed that the Convention would adjourn after one, or perhaps two, ballots.

The roll-call proceeded for the fourth ballot and there was a cheer when California gave its sixteen votes for Blaine. Colorado followed and then Connecticut was called. Some were cast for Alger, Allison and Gresham, and one for McKinley of MKINLEY PULLS OUT.

Immediately the latter gentleman the crowd of delegates, who looked at him in some surprise. With much feeling in his voice he stated that he had been sent there by Ohio to work for John Sherman that he had been honored by Senator Sherman's confidence, and raising his hand impressively in the air, added: "I cannot permit my name to be used in this Convention. I would be disloyal to the State n which I live should I waver in my devotion to the chief of our choice. I therefore request, gentlemen of the Convention. eye, I demand that no delegate in this Convention who does not want to cast reflect ion on me east a further ballot for me." Amid a round of applause Congressman McKinley resumed his seat and the call showed fifty nine votes for Harrison, with A delegate asked that the vote be polled, and this tedious proceeding progressed for several minutes. "John B. Weber," called the clerk.

The familiar form of the Buffalo Con-gressman became at once distinct amid the New York delegates. "When I came here this morning," he said, "I had determined to vote for Mr. Depew until the end, but at his urgent request and in deference to the evident inclination of my colleagues, I shall vote for Mr. Harrison.' The crowd was indignant at the imposition of a stump speech in the middle of a roll-call and hissed the speaker vigorously. Nearly all the States which followed added a quota of more or less strength for Harrison. Pennsylvania's continued adherence to Sherman excited some surprise, as many members of the delegation, including Repesentative Bayne, were loudly shouting for Harrison.

THE AMERICAN SPHINX. Blaine Looks Happy, but Will Not Talk Much Politics.

EDINBURGH, June 24th.—At 7 o'clock lass vening the coaches of the Blaine-Carnegie party rolled into Edinburgh, being the tourists' longest day's coaching since the trip began. Blaine had not heard anything of the proceedings at Chicago when he ar-rived here. Nothing but the tariff, Blaine thinks, will break the solid South. He is-unquestionably pleased with the demonstrations that have been made in his favor at Chicago in so far as considered personal the burden of leadership will fall upon the shoulders of another man.

Although Blaine steadfastly refuses to talk about the possible outcome of the Chi-cago Convention, other members of Carnegie's coaching party declare that he would not decline to become a candidate if nanimously nominated.

When Blaine heard of Depew's prediction, that he would be nominated by 4 o'clock in the afternoon Monday, he said

Washington, June 24th.—Senator Sherman, when asked yesterday if it was true that he had been asked to withdraw in favor of McKinley, said he would neither He did not think that there was any danger of Ohio leaving him to take up Mc-Kinley. He said New York went to Harrison to take the vote of the doubtful States out of the field. "The result of their purpose," said he, "did not surprise me. If on Monday Depew should place Blaine in nomination in a speech, or announces New York's vote for him, then Blaine would be in the position that the other candidates would combine against him. If his friends imagine he will be nominated without a call of States, they are mistaken.

Sherman continued: "If Blaine comes before the Convention I do not see why the Alger men should go for him, because that would wipe the Michigan men out. Washington, June 24th.-At half-past 0 o'clock this evening a reporter of the Associated Press called upon Senator Sher-man and informed him of the conflicting rumors respecting himself from Chicago. "I have not withdrawn," he said, "either onditionally or unconditionally." He conversed freely about the extraor linary condition of affairs, but authorized no publication of his remarks beyond that already quoted, repeating that he had not withdrawn and was still awaiting the action of the Convention.

Midnight Survey of the Field, and What It Revealed.

CHICAGO, June 24th-P. M.-The Sherman managers have got their second wind to night and are mysteriously confident and satisfied over the prospects for to-morrow's session of the Convention. THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION. There are not a few doubters and neryous people who entertain and express fears of the result of the National Republican Convention to nominate at once. They fear that the struggle of the friends of the many candidates makes it appear too effortful to fix upon a leader. It would seem to cool judgment, however, that there is strength in the fact that the Republican party is so rich in material from which to choose a standard-bearer for 1888. Were there but one candidate, as was the case with the Democratic Convention, where no other than one dared to present his and the principles for which it stands that is the essential of success. The truth is, there are not less than three score of men in the Republican party so pre-eminent for statesmanship, patriotic service to their country and loyalty to the party through a long series of chosen as a Presidential candidate with the perfect confidence that in case of election we would have a Chief Executive capable, able and trustworthy. That the eight hundred delegates at Chicago should, among so much political and personal worth, continue in session five days in the effort to fix upon one out of so large a group, indicates precisely the reverse of weakness. Moreover, the Republican party never has been in national council so "bossed" that it walked in this, that or the other path at bidding. All its Conventions prove that they have been deliberative in the true sense. They have very often been contentious in a commendable sense; very often there have been many candidates hotly pressed by their friends for preferment in the National

In the Convention of 1876 at Cincinnati there were eight candidates, and Mr. Blaine leading throughout to the eighth ballot, was defeated by Mr. Hayes. The former at one time received 351 votes, Mr. in with but 61; Mr. Conkling had 93. Governor Hartranft 71, Governor Morton 124. That was a memorable contest, with such en as those named, and Jewell, Washburne and Wheeler and others in the

In 1880 at Chicago no less than 34 ballots were taken, and the contest was one of the most exciting and remarkable. The candidates were very numerous and very strong, and though such a great name as that of Grant headed the list, and Sherman, Blaine, Edmunds, Warshburne and Windom were in the field, the choice fell on the last ballot upon Garfield.

The Convention of 1884 was comparatively the briefest of those of recent years. though the candidates were plentiful and strong, such as Arthur, Logan, Edmunds, Sherman, Hawley, Lincoln, Blaine and

Let the friends of the Republican party be not misled by the fears the Democrats are so industriously cultivating among them; for the present Convention is not exceptional in the heat of its contest, or the numbers and strength of the great names under consideration That there are many, and that their followers rally about them so valiantly, is one of the best evidences possible to be had of the compactness and strength of

That the one appeals to history and the national flag in evidence of its greater devotion and higher patriotism is neither surprising nor objectionable. That the other is as devoted to the flag and the republic it is not for us to question, nor yet to prompt it to special methods of arousing enthusiasm for its cause. Neither is it for that party to say to its opponent that by flying the national colors it cheapens and debases them. The retort might well be made that the time was when its political enemy lost more than half its strength by the attempt made to

> IF the prayers of myriads can avail aught, the fate of Stanley, the intrepid explorer, will not be one of disaster. The fears now entertained for his safety, are unfortunately very well grounded. It is now eight months since Stanley should have reached Emin Pasha according to the former's estimate of the progress he should make after leaving Gambuyn. The news that he not not arrived at the time expected is six and a half month's old. But that there has been sent out no other messenger from Emin's camp with news to December 1st, is now believed, for had one been dispatched some news of him should now be at hand. It is, therefore, feared that not only has Stanley not reached the camp at Wadelai, but that the latter may have been destroyed. All the African explorers hold, however, that Stanley is safe, and that he was well enough equipped to entered upon a year ago. News gatherers do not share the faith of the explorers, such eminent service to the world, that its rich scientific societies, geographical associations and research organizations cannot doubt. The civilized nations have an interest also in following him up and in preventing the dark continent swallowing up the great explorer, or sacrificing him to "Harvesting is in progress in Tennessee and Kentucky. Where the weather is cold the conditions have been favorable to wheat and corn, but unfavorable for grass.

TOO CONSERVATIVE.

Secretary Fairchild's Unique Views Civil Service Reform. Washington, June 24th.-Secretary Fairchild has written a long letter to George William Curtis, President of the New York Civil Service Reform Association, protesting against the latter's editorial criticisms n the matter of removals from the New York Custom-house. The Secretary declares that he did only his duty in remov ing certain persons in connection with the ugar appraisements, and points to the act that since these removals the Governnent has collected $800 a day in New York more on sugar than it did before. He also points out that by them the Secretary is only accountable for abuses of the and kindred works. kind mentioned and he has nobody else that the suspicion might get abroad that the influence of professed friends of the Administration and of the officers appointed by it has caused me to be overautious and too conservative in regard to those matters.
